An Introduction to the Interviews section

Every month a new question will be asked to learners of all different grades. Interview questions are based on what's happening that month. (like a big event or something) If you have questions, contact: danielle@scclc.net

Learner Interview: What did you do over your February Break?

Learners at our school did many different things over their February break. Sayler Hirsch from 1st Grade said "I went to Palm Springs, it was fun." Another learner, Lena Palmer from 7th Grade told us, "I made a Rube Goldberg machine with Aleena (7th Grade), and went skiing." Lastly, Reid Sherman, a 2nd Grader told us that he "went to the magic castle." We hope everyone had awesome break!

An Introduction to the Politics Section

Welcome to the politics section of the pride post! Our names are Spencer and Chesney, and our goal here is to cover political events. If you have a specific topic that you would like us to write about please email either: spencer.m@scclc.net or chesney.e@scclc.net.

Pelosi vs Trump

We have house Democrat Nancy Pelosi standing 5'5'' and President Donald Trump standing 6'3'' in a rivalry that has been heating up since the government shutdown. Many people have been keeping a close eye on this pair as they struggle to push their respective agendas. A retired teacher from SCC, Carol Drace, told a reporter that Trump looked up to Pelosi and supported her until she ridiculed his wall. Pelosi and Trump's rivalry started when Pelosi became the speaker of the house she then openly ridiculed the wall. Most reporters speculated that Trump would give Pelosi a nickname like Elizabeth Warren, who is commonly referred to by Trump as Pocahontas. Trump has still not given Pelosi a nickname... yet.

Fantasy Story

(this Fantasy Story will continue in the next newspapers as well as this one.)

Jenny Smith woke up to a dreary grey room filled with bitter cold. The window beside her bed was left open, leaving her fingers and nose stained with frost leftover from the night before. "JENNY! JENNY! WAKE UP" her younger brother's voice echoed as he stomped up the stairs. Jenny groaned, and rolled over onto her side covering her head with her large sky blue blanket. "What time is it?" she asked "JENNY! IT'S 7:30! YOU'RE LATE FOR SCHOOL!" her brother, Josh, screamed from the door. "You know-" she started, only to roll over and off the bed before she could finish the sentence. Suddenly Jenny's vision, went, black.

The advice column is the section of the newspaper where anyone in the SCC community can send their questions to be answered by their peers. Send in your questions at

Our first submission:

Dear Miss Shera,

Is there a way to be less angry and more at peace with oneself?

Advice Column

Dear Dancing Queen,

The first step would be to understand why you are being hard on yourself and remember your strengths and skills. Anger is an emotion that can really control all others and this can be bad. When you are angry about something that happened in the past, you have to remember each day is a new day that brings new opportunities. You want to realize the reason you are being hard on yourself and let it go. As soon as you can do that, happiness and peace will follow.

With love,
Miss Shera

How to Clean your Computer

Your computer probably needs a cleaning. Here is how you do it: First, you need to turn it off then, take a cloth (a microfiber cloth works best) and put a little bit of rubbing alcohol on it and use the cloth to gently wipe down the trackpad and the keyboard. "The screen is a slightly different matter. You should be able to wipe fingerprints off with a dry microfiber cloth, but if you need a bit more cleaning power, a little bit of water — again, poured onto the cloth and wrung out first — can go a long way." Says Whitson Gordon. If your computer smells bad, then you should use kitty litter, recommends Ms. Kerr.
